

Beyond the Boundary

Conceptual Models of the (Religious) Stranger in Judaism, Christianity, and Islam

Thursday, June 6, 2019

Location: Royce Hall
Room 306
Time: 4:00 - 6:00 PM
Reception to Follow

This panel discussion is open to members of the UCLA and Los Angeles communities who are interested in exploring a key issue of concern in contemporary religious and cultural studies.

The forum also is the culmination of the upper-division seminar course Religion 120. The course is designed to introduce students from a broad spectrum of academic disciplines, as well as cultural and religious backgrounds, to an analysis of the complex interrelatedness of Judaism, Christianity, and Islam.

Moderator

Reinhard Krauss, Ph.D.

Lecturer, UCLA Center for the Study of Religion

Panelists

Rabbi Elliot Dorff, Ph.D.

Rector and Professor of Philosophy
American Jewish University

Janna Gosselin, Ph.D.

Professor of Christian Spirituality, New Theological Seminary of the West

Muzammil Siddiqi, Ph.D.

Chair, Fiqh Council of North America and Religious Director, Islamic Society of Orange County

Free and Open to the Public

Co-sponsored by the Academy for Judaic, Christian and Islamic Studies at UCLA | www.afjcis.org

www.religion.ucla.edu • csr@humnet.ucla.edu •  @Official UCLA Center for the Study of Religion •  @UCLA CSR/Religion